

ABSTRACT

Disclosed is a process for producing a mycelium of a Matsutake fungus, comprising the step of cultivating a mycelium on a small scale under agitation without aeration or with aeration at a low rate of less than 0.05 vvm in a liquid medium. According to the process, a large number of mycelia can be produced without a loss of physiological activities.